About This Game

Planet 1138 is a vehicle based action game with a heavy emphasis on strategy. Players control a heavily armed ATV as they fight to destroy their opponents base while defending their own. Players can build outposts and turrets along the way in order to manufacture troops and amass an army they can command. Bases are protected by repairable shield generators that must be disabled before they can be damaged so building an army to command is a very important part of the game. With Planet 1138's unique balance between action and strategy players can win matches through pure skill, brilliant strategy, or a combination of both.

Features:

- Build outposts, amass an army, and command your troops to victory without leaving the battle yourself.
- Seventeen mission single-player campaign with a robust upgrade system that rewards players for replaying levels against multiple different AI opponents.
- Full controller support.
- Win battles through brilliant strategy, pure fighting skill, or a combination of both.
- Original music by Jason Heine of HeineHouseEntertainment.com

quite a gem. Played No-VR expecting some good horror and good scares....the Aliens are buggy and just stand there after they "die" in awkward positions, if there are updates and improvements I can change my review..... nothing about this is fun, no good gore, no good sound effects. not even close to done.. If Arfenhouse was a video game.. I don't usually enjoy using LMGs(since I enjoy compact guns\long range rifles) I used the Mauser(I can't remember if it was called the Type 17 pistol or what), Sten, and the Mosin Nagant

The Mosin, overall is a good gun, like I usually run a akimbo build, and it was really awkward going back into precision aiming, but after my first 10 kills, running the mosin with iron sights was actually enjoyable.

Mauser is good with iron sights(didn't get to add any attachments cause just tested them on HOTLINE MIAMI on hard difficulty). It is low recoil, and easily spammable since it has low spread.

Buzzsaw, like most LMG's, are very hard to aim unless fired in short bursts, or using a good enforcer build.

Sten is good too. Nothing much to say about it, it is overall a good gun, it is a good replacement to the Swedish "Grease Gun" style SMG, but I rather use the Sten than that.

<http://steamcommunity.com/profiles/76561197970498956/recommended/331900> Don't be this guy btw. he got mad at a 1 second reload animation, and didn't recommend it solely for that reason. yet these guns are actually fun to use.

If you enjoy ARVSniper gameplay, or run Mastermind, this pack is for you, even if LMG is the best one yet.

Remember kids: No one gives a \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665 to a M1A1 Tompson, just because you saw it in Rising Storm or a old CoD game, doesn't make it the best gun ever, it is lots of recoil and I enjoyed that Overkill didn't add it because hype train, instead added the best loud and heavy melee ever, a american flag spear.

10/10 would breakout hoxton as General Patton. Good game, might be one of the best indie games ever. Puzzles to do and relaxing.. March 28, 2017- I can't recommend this right now. It's EA, I know, but it was put into EA too early. It feels like a pre-alpha build. It misses pretty much every mark. Everything about this game is sub-par right now, right down to the intro screen and menu system. It's so far off the mark that I couldn't bring myself to play it for more than a few minutes.

Don't touch this one unless you're willing to leave the game on a shelf for about 2 years, or possibly forever, depending on what the developers choose to do with this game. Hopefully they keep working on it, but right now... only pick it up if you like to support indie developers.

A generous 2/10.. The game is pretty good so far, but my only problem so far is the misspelling. Seriously there are some stories where the words are spelled incorrectly,including the latest character's one.

Not much replayability, but super cool to at least check out. Especially enjoyed the Terracotta Army.. A mediocre experience. Barely worth the playthrough even if free. I did however enjoy the final boss fight. Comes bundled with slenderman, 5 nights at freddy clone mini games which are unlocked once the main campaign is completed. 3.5 /10. Into the Blue is a neat little game you can play for 30 to 60 min.
For an Indiegame it looks pretty decent.

Now I thought it would be like an open World exploration-game, where you can do whatever the helllll you want to do, but it didn't turn out that way.

In fact it was pretty strict forward lettting you almost give none of the choices to you.

of course, you can leave the road you are supposed to walk, but it doesn't get you anywhere or it just loops ya back.

the Game is Fun for the moment, but If you get stuck at some point, it gets almost unenjoyable.

Personally I enjoyed that one Hour I played it, but it was not worth it the 10\u20ac I have put into this, meaning i won't give it a positive Feedback.. Water is OP. awesome its like hl2 but better and online .....and death match. 5 minutes into the game, drowned my excavator and got my forklift stuck in a rock. When I exited the forklift I fell under the map.

Just another cash grab at the whole "SIMULATORS AMIRITE" phase.

Short but good.. dead as a door nail so no just no wont get your 99 cents worth
